British Columbia Aviation Museum Society

1980's – to present

1.1 meters of textual records

Biographical sketch: In 1986 three local groups collaborated on the vision to establish an aviation museum at the Victoria International Airport. The Expo Legacy Fund (1987) provided $135,000 toward construction of an aviation museum. With this grant, and a 20-year lease agreement with the Victoria Airport Authority, the British Columbia Aviation Museum Society was registered in June of 1988. Construction of the first hangar began. An additional grant of $115,000 from the provincial lottery funding initiative along with donations and volunteer labour the original building was completed by mid-1990. Additional buildings were built in 1999 and 2007 through to 2011.

Custodial history: The collection was initially compiled from items (print documents and photographs) held in Museum Library filing cabinets under the Heading of "Archives". The word archives was understood as a place for correspondence, news articles, photographs, board minutes, membership lists of the Society, development of the property and aviation history specific to southern Vancouver Island held for research and historical purposes but not suitable, due to their nature, for the library shelves.

Scope and content: This collection consists of photocopied materials, original documents, society correspondence, minutes, financial statements specifically of the society and organizations directly related to the history of aviation on the south Island.

Source of supplied title: Title based on the provenance of the collection.

Finding aids: File and item list is available.

Restrictions: The collection is open for research.

Conservation note: Materials were placed into acid free folders and acid free boxes. Staples and paperclips were removed and replaced with brass paper clips.

Description of terms:

"Formerly" refers to the file numbering system when the documents were housed in the Library filing cabinets.

"See Also (SA)" space in the table is provided to cross-reference materials in other locations of the museum such as the Library (books, serials, DVDs), Artifacts collection or online resources.

Location: TBD ...
