Bill Green was kind, polite, a complete gentleman; a workmate, posting on his memorial page, called him "Mr. Wonderful"

Born at St. Paul's Hospital, Bill grew up on the East side of Vancouver and had a love affair with flying which began in his teens, when he joined the Air Cadets.

His career started in northern Ontario and continued on the West Coast of Canada with Queen Charlotte Airlines. From there he moved to Canadian Pacific Airlines (CP Air), where he stayed until he retired in 1992. While he was flying with them, he was relocated to Peru and later on to New Zealand. He and his wife, Suzanne were adventurers travelling around the world together for decades.

After he retired, Bill became a member of a gliding club, the Vancouver Soaring Association in Hope, B.C.
